

Highlights in the Foreign Exchange Market:

- The euro advanced to a three-month high against the dollar this morning still being supported by dollar selling after the US Fed signaled an interest rate cut last week. Recent PMI surveys out of the region showed slight improvements in the manufacturing and services sectors showing some hope of a pickup in output this year. The euro's rally has seen the EUR/USD pair grow around 1.51% over the week.
- Unlike the ECB and Fed which have both signaled willingness to lower interest rates unless global outlook improves, the Bank of England struck a less dovish tone. The bank voted unanimously to keep interest rates on hold at 0.75% and stuck to their message that rates would need to rise as long as Britain avoids a detrimental no-deal Brexit. However, economic growth is expected to drop to zero in the second quarter as the BOE claimed, "underlying growth in the UK appears to have weakened slightly in the first half of the year relative to 2018 to a rate a little below its potential." Still, the GBP/USD pair managed to increase 1.30% over the past week.
- Gold prices advanced this morning, hovering near a six-year high reached Friday, as dovish signals from major central banks and heightened tensions between the United States and Iran boosted demand for the safe-haven metal. Gold was up 1.3% over Friday's close at $1,404. Oil prices also climbed due to the US-Iran tensions. Crude prices will likely continue to be supported as markets wait to see Iran's response to the threat of additional sanctions. The Brent futures were up 27 cents, or 0.4%.
